REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CANDIDATE DECISION IS UP TO LOYAL PARTISANS

Charles C. Moore Is Indicated as Successor to Hiram Johnson by a Big Majority Vote Because of Clean-Cut Campaign

SWING FROM THE PRESENT INCUMBENT Reports Show Southern California Will Turn in Tremendous Vote Against Attorney of Hearst in Senate Who Is Seeking Re-nomination and Election

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—California Republican electors will go to the polls tomorrow to express by their votes the manner of representation they desire in the United States Senate.

On one hand they have Charles C. Moore, business man, constructionist and patriot. On the other they have Hiram Johnson, once a great progressive governor, but now classed as an obstructionist and demagogue.

Those who have followed the trend of the campaign predict a sweeping victory for Moore. Carefully compiled figures show that Moore will carry every county in Southern California, and pile up a majority of at least 50,000 votes in this section of the state. The more optimistic Moore partisans declare this figure will reach a total of 100,000.

Moore is a wonderfully strong candidate, and has developed additional support with each succeeding day of his campaign. The voters learned that he is a citizen of the highest rank, a citizen of the class which can seldom be induced to run for public office. He is not in any sense of the word a politician—simply an alert, ethical business man who is accustomed to accomplishing big things by logical methods.

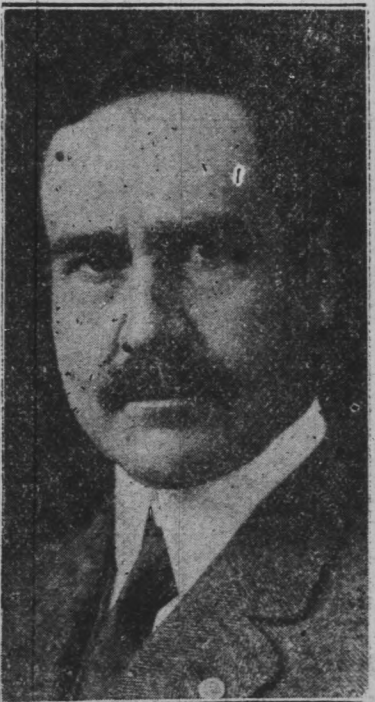

Moore's platform is clear-cut and definite. He declares himself opposed to oriental immigration, Ku Kluxism and radicalism. He favors compensation for service men, adequate tariff for California industries and enforcement of all existing laws. Briefly, his platform is constructive and far-seeing. He does not look on agreements, such as the four-power pact, as "entangling alliances," but as a logical means to end world strife and put world commerce on a firm and beneficial basis. He promises to work with the Republican administration.

Johnson has never been able to make much of an impression on the voters of Southern California, as his defeat in this section by Willis Booth in 1916 attests. Aside from the present contest against Moore, the 1916 test of ballots was the only Republican senatorial contest in which Johnson has ever engaged. He defeated the comparatively unknown Booth by a scant 15,000 votes in the entire state, while Booth carried Southern California with a majority of more than 14,000.

In the election against Booth, Johnson carried by two Southern California counties—Imperial and Kern. The former returned him a majority of 189 in a total of 891 votes; Kern gave Johnson 658 votes, the best of 2302 total.

The rest of the southern districts were for Booth. Inyo returned a 103 vote majority for him in a total of 385; Los Angeles registered 8999 votes majority in a 66,047 total; Orange totaled 4392 ballots, with a Booth majority of 1616; Riverside favored Booth by 270 votes in a 4388 total; San Bernardino, out of a total of 6395, returned Booth winner by 1119; San Diego cast 9641 ballots, and Booth was favored by 2389 majority; Santa Barbara shaded Booth under the wire with a 114 majority out of 3222 votes cast; and Ventura, with a total of 2136, gave Booth 342 majority.

In Los Angeles alone the Republican registration for this year is 75,000 votes more than it was in any previous election. Moore is a much stronger candidate than was Booth, despite the fact that Booth was a Los Angeles man. Reports from San Diego and Orange counties show positively that Moore will be favored with twice the vote that was returned for Booth. In Imperial, because of the fact that it is vitally interested in the Boulder Dam project, and because Moore is a trained engineer, familiar with similar projects, and is a firm friend of Herbert Hoover, is sure to reverse itself and give Johnson fewer votes than it casts for Moore. Kern county has developed into a

GLENDALE DAILY PRESS TO MARK ELECTION NIGHT WITH MUSIC AND RETURNS

News of Voting to Be Received by Wire, Sent by Radio and Shown by Stereopticon While KFAC Orchestra Plays

There will be a hot time in the old town Tuesday night. The Glendale Daily Press has leased a direct United Press service and will furnish the people with the election returns hot off of the wire.

The returns will be thrown on a screen in front of the Press building with a stereopticon machine.

In between times the people will have an opportunity to sing old time songs and popular songs to the strains of music furnished by the KFAC orchestra, who will also play dance music.

The Press-Newton radio station will also broadcast the returns at the same time they are being veritable Moore stronghold. Riverside and San Bernardino, because of Mr. Moore's intimate connection with the citrus industry as owner of orange and lemon groves in Southern California, are sure to be strong for Moore. Santa Barbara and Ventura have expressed no uncertainty in their preference for Moore, and are certain to show this preference with healthy majorities.

Even by Johnson's most ardent supporters it is conceded that Moore will sweep the Southland. The only question that is worrying Moore advocates is the size of the majority. They want to send their favorite candidate to the Tehachapi with a majority that will prove beyond doubt that the voters of Southern California know and appreciate Moore's fitness for the post of United States senator, and at the same time show a realization of Johnson's decadence from his former usefulness as a public servant to his present state of demagogic self-interest.

thrown on the screen in front of the building.

That isn't all. There will be a big guessing contest for all by radio and open to the people in front of the building who are able to hear the music. The party guessing the names of the most number of pieces played will receive first prize, the party guessing the next best number correct will receive second prize and so on down the list. Prizes offered, run from a dollar of chewing gum to a $20 receiving set, including hair nets, phonograph records and many other prizes all of which will be listed in tomorrow night's paper.

John Robert White, jr., who represented this district in the state legislature for two terms, has also been a Glendelian long enough to have witnessed most of the growth of the city, which he served for several years as a member of the board of city trustees. He is much interested in school affairs and in all the interests which materially affect the welfare of the community. He is an officer in the California Furniture company of Los Angeles, and its buyer, having grown up in the carpet business in which his father was engaged before him.

Spencer Robinson, mayor of Glendale, is too well known to need introduction to its citizens. For many years he was a professional singer and he has a large acquaintance among musical artists of note. He insists that he would still rather sing than do anything else. He has a very intimate knowledge of the county and Southern California, having been engaged in the real estate business for years, and also has a large and intimate acquaintance with its people.

John C. Sherer, owner of Somerset farm on Verdugo road, and city treasurer, is a real pioneer, having come to the San Fernando valley before there was a Glendale. His name figures largely in the early history of the settlement, and probably no citizen has a better knowledge of its development and the people who were responsible for laying the foundations of the city we now have. He is much respected and is prominent in most civic movements.

Charles H. Toll has the judgment to select one of the most beautiful sites in the city when he located his home on Kenneth road. He has for many years been an officer in the Security Trust & Savings bank of Los Angeles and sufficiently in touch with big affairs to give him influence and command the respect of his fellow citizens. He is a good Glendelian, always ready to push any movement for the good of the community, and always ready to supplement the activities of Mrs. Toll along civic and educational lines. Both gave generous service for the Red Cross during the war.

Thomas D. Watson settled in Glendale after his return from overseas service in the World war. He established the sheet metal business now being carried on at 127 North Glendale avenue, but not finding that a sufficient field for his abounding energy, purchased an interest in the Glendale Press, of which he is general manager. He is a man of vision who sees a great future for Glendale, and rejoices in the opportunity to help bring that vision to pass. He is a Knight Templar, a 32nd degree Mason and a member of most of the fraternal and other organizations of the city. He is president of the board of trustees of Glendale union high school.

Short History of Those Who Are to Be Voted Upon for County Committee of the 61st District and Other Offices

SUCCESS MEANS MUCH TO PRESTIGE OF CITY All Are Prominent in Working for the Betterment of Glendale and Are Identified With All That Stands for Progress

Glendale citizens have hardly wakened up to the fact that Glendale is largely represented among political candidates, several for membership on the county Republican central committee, a candidate for member of the state board of equalization and a candidate for the state assembly.

Glendale candidates for the Republican county central committee include:

Charles L. Chandler, Los Angeles attorney, who has been a resident of Glendale for many years and has always lived up to his duties as a citizen by taking part in political campaigns in which he believed and promoted the interests of the republican party. He is deeply interested in the welfare of the city and can be depended upon to support any movement for its betterment. His home is in Verdugo Woodlands. He has an interesting family of children and is a good friend and patron of the boy scouts.

David G. Crofton, one of the pioneer shoe merchants of this city, has been a resident of Glendale for about ten years and prominent in Masonic and social circles. He is regarded as one of the substantial business men of the town.

W. E. Evans, who is practicing law in Los Angeles, is also an old resident of Glendale, with a large circle of friends and relatives here. For several years he was city attorney and he has always been prominent in the republican organization here. He is a man of pleasant personality and is prominent socially.

Peter L. Ferry may also be regarded as a pioneer, his home being on Acacia street in what was once Tropic. He has been in the contracting business for many years and has handled some of the biggest enterprises put through on this coast, notably at Wilmington. He is considered a man of affairs and his judgment and cooperation are sought when new projects are contemplated. He is a member of the chamber of commerce and has taken a great interest in high school affairs.

Mrs. Ella W. Richardson has been a resident of Glendale since she came as a young wife to Tropic. She is a woman of generous heart, very public-spirited, and is always ready to give personal service in any cause of which she approves. She is a member of the Tuesday Afternoon club, has been active in P. T. A. work in the past and is much called upon when things that are worth while are doing. She is devoted to the town and has large personal interests here.

HEARST - JOHNSON ALLIANCE MANY YEARS OLD

Marshal Stimson Discloses Early Backing of Senator's Career

"Hearstism is the big issue in this campaign," said Marshal Stimson, principle speaker at the Moore for Senator meeting held Saturday night in the auditorium of the Glendale Union High School.

"The alliance between Hearst and Johnson dates back many years," he said. "Just prior to the joining of Hearst and Johnson forces, Hiram made a statement that 'Hearst is a character assassin and an apostle of sandbag tactics.'"

According to Mr. Stimson the breach between Hearst and Johnson was healed because of mutual needs. The alleged need of Johnson for money and access to publicity and Mr. Hearst's need for platform ability were the contributing factors to the alliance. This alliance was termed by Mr. Stimson as the "most dangerous combination and one that will hesitate at nothing."

Mr. Stimson said that when Mr. Johnson started his campaign in this state he said: "There is not enough tainted money or crooked politicians in the state of California to defeat me." At the same time Mr. Johnson is charged with having opened his own coffers and dumped into them the money of Hearst and Mike DeYoung.

Mr. Stimson termed the four power pact as a treaty designed to bring the nations together. He said: "When we have a senator that tries to block such a treaty it is time for action because similar treaties must come before the senate at various times. It is time to use care in the selection of senators."

"Johnson's association with Hearst in international affairs is extremely dangerous. Any man or newspaper that tries to keep the English speaking nations apart is dangerous and a menace to the people."

Mr. Stimson told of the lives of Johnson and of Charles C. Moore, having known both candidates for many years. Mr. Stimson was associated with Charles C. Moore as a commissioner of the Panama-Pacific international exposition at San Francisco. He said that at that time Mike DeYoung, owner of the San Francisco Chronicle, and one of Mr. Moore's chief opponents. This animosity has continued, he said.

In 1910, Mr. Stimson said that he was the chairman of Johnson's campaign committee during his race for the governorship of California. He said: "I am not interested in this campaign from the standpoint of big business and radicalism, but as an average man, who is interested in raising a family in California."

Mrs. Florence Collins Porter spoke in behalf of Mr. Moore. She said that ever since Mr. Johnson's election to the post of governor of this state, there has been two opinions regarding him in this state. One opinion was that he was a demigod proclaiming his power and authority throughout the state. The other opinion was that Mr. Johnson was a man against whom the democrats in voting against Harding's and Hughes' four-power pact designed to avert future war over Pacific ocean problems. The treaty was overwhelmingly passed by the republican majority, and Johnson says it is a dead issue.

That is untrue, for if Johnson is elected again for six years, how many more similar treaties may appear in the senate to be fought by Johnson and the Hearst press? "Tomorrow is election day, and yet Johnson has so far ignored the questions on the Newberry contest; his failure to vote on the Esch-Cummins railroad bill; the $10,000 fee from Hearst; the big fee from the Tammany democratic government of New York city; and the fact that Frank Flint and other noted Southern Pacific champions of former days are now supporting him."

"Charles C. Moore, one of the ablest and biggest men of California, who carried the famous Panama-Pacific exposition through to a successful finish, I feel should be our next senator. His war record, his business record, his moral character, his well balanced mind, qualify him to be a worthy representative of California. When in the senate, he will not have a long record of absences when important questions are up for vote. I ask all my friends and neighbors in Glendale to vote tomorrow for Charles C. Moore."

Respectfully,
"DAN CAMPBELL,
President Moore for Senator Club of Glendale."

DON'T LET THEM FOOL YOU SAYS GOV. STEPHENS IN FINAL WORD OF CAMPAIGN

Never in the History of State Has More Determined Effort Been Made to Wrest Control of Government From the People

"WHY?" ASKS GOVERNOR W. D. STEPHENS "Because They Seek to Repeal the Humane Legislation Enacted in This State During the Last Ten Years," Says the State Executive

By W. D. STEPHENS
As the campaign leading up to the primary election draws to a close, and as I consider the assurances that come to me from every part of the state of an unprecedented support, I am more than ever convinced that the people of California are vitally concerned for the welfare and stability of those principles of government which, during my administration, have been zealously safeguarded and developed; an administration not in the interests of any sectional advantage or special privilege, but for the common welfare of the entire state.

I have been long enough in public life, as congressman and governor, to realize that no man who does his duty by the people, resisting the policies and propaganda of selfish interests, can escape a certain amount of unreasonable and malicious abuse. Such unfair treatment does not often come from the ignorant, but from those who know a great deal better and who for wholly selfish reasons, prostitute their wealth and their influence to deceive and mislead the voters of the state.

Never in the history of the state has a more determined effort been made to wrest control of California's government from the hands of the people. Why?

Never before has so much money or its equivalent in newspaper space been used for the purpose of naming a governor who might be controlled by the Los Angeles Times, the leaders of the so-called Better America, Federation, the Southern Pacific and the allied interests. Why?

They seek control that they may reduce their taxes—not the people's taxes. Don't let them fool you!

They seek the repeal of all legislation that has given control in California to the people of California. They seek to repeal the humane legislation enacted in this state during the last ten years. There is but one issue in this election. Shall the people or the selfish interests rule the state?

I look with pride upon the advancement the state has made during the last few years and upon the enviable position which it now holds among the states of the union, both because of its progressive legislation and because of its material prosperity. I am filled with the belief that we will witness in the next four years an advancement and a development unequalled elsewhere. To this end we shall be called upon to conserve what we have gained, and to advance along careful and constructive lines. With courage to meet the demands of progress, I confidently commit my candidacy for re-election as governor to the will of the people.

HOLDS MEETING
The Christian Endeavor of the Tropic Presbyterian church decided Sunday evening that they would vary their program and therefore hold their meeting out of doors, as the topic was lessons from God's Out of Doors from Psalm eight. Walter Sullivan was the leader.

The usual hour was changed, as they met from six to seven and had a social time afterward, with refreshments served by Miss Francis Goldsborough, Miss Norma Wallace and Miss Dorothy Thompson. Music for singing was furnished by ukeles. They sat on the grass in camp fashion and the beautiful trees and garden added much to the attractiveness.

EAGLE ROCK PUMP BREAKS; FEAR OF SHORTAGE

Residents Get Order to Use Only Necessary Supply

Calls from panicky residents, who feared the water supply of Eagle Rock had been exhausted, kept the members of the water department at the city hall busy this morning. Calls came from outlying districts as well as from the portion of the city supplied by the Sycamore pump.

A mishap with the bearings caused the Sycamore pump to break down Thursday. As many residents as could be reached were told not to use the water for anything but household purposes, and that the supply on hand in the tank was sufficient to last until the repairs on the pump could be completed.

Numerous residents failed to abide by the instructions given out and, consequently, are facing a water shortage and have been calling the city hall since an early hour this morning to find out if it is a serious shortage.

James R. Marlagon of the water department stated this morning that there was no need for a panic, as the pump would be in working order again by this evening.

Listening in on Eve

EXPLAINING TO HIM

"I don't understand you at all this evening, Patterson," said the remarkably pretty young woman to her fiancé, who had sukked and glowered for an hour. "Something must be on your mind. What is it?"

"I should think there was!" exploded the young man. "Although I am surprised that you should take the trouble to notice it! After last night and everything!"

"My goodness!" the remarkably pretty young woman cried. "What has happened? Did some one—"

"As though you didn't know!" the young man interrupted her coldly. "Everyone could see how you were flirting with that Biggett man from the east, and I have no doubt they were thinking me an idiot to stand it. No doubt they were laughing at me. You were absolutely fascinated by him, and the way you looked at him—"

"Why, Patterson?" the pretty young woman remonstrated with the protesting eyes of a child. "I never heard such a crazy idea! I never dreamed you could be jealous—"

"Jealous—bah!" cried the young man indignantly. "Who says I am jealous? There isn't a particle of jealousy in my nature! It is merely self-respect, and no man wants the girl he is engaged to smiling at another man that way."

"I am sorry you are so wrought up, Patterson," said the pretty girl with extreme gentleness. "Of course, if you don't want me ever to speak to another man, and to run away if he says good evening to me, and have everyone saying what a stupid, uninteresting girl you are going to marry, and why on earth did you pick her out—"

"It is no such thing, Catalpa!" cried the young man. "You talk as though I were a Turk! When all that I object to is that—"

"Yes, what is it you object to?" asked the pretty young woman with great patience. The disturbed young man took a deep breath. "The way you looked at him," he began. "And smiled at him—"

"He did I look?" inquired the pretty girl. "And smile?"

"Oh," said the young man, "you might have been pleasant, but still not so darned pleasant! You'd have thought he was the only man on earth—"

"You said," the pretty girl pointed out to him reproachfully, "that, what was the very first thing which attracted you to me, Patterson? You said I was so sincere in my interest, and you felt that nobody else mattered to me—"

"But Great Scott!" cried her fiancé, agitatedly. "That may be so, but can't you see I don't want other chaps to be stricken with the same feeling? Think how—how complicated it would make affairs—a lot of 'em feeling they were the only ones on earth who counted with you—and all that? And you acted as though you were enjoying doing it!"

"I don't see how I can change the expression I've always had," the pretty girl said plaintively. "And you know that you are the only one who counts—"

"Yes, but they don't," exploded the young man.

"Well, why bother to be such a philanthropist?" the pretty girl inquired. "They are grown-up men and should be able to look out for themselves, Patterson! It is just like your unselfishness and nobleness to worry over them, but I just wouldn't do it—"

"I don't care a hang about their sorrow!" growled the young man, walking up and down nervously. "You don't seem to get my point, Catalpa! You've no idea of the effect of your eyes with their long lashes! And when you smile the combination sort of goes to one's head, you know."

"Does it?" the pretty young woman asked in subdued tones. "Oh, you must be mistaken, Patterson! Though I shouldn't dream of doubting your word. Why, I don't care a scrap about that eastern man! I think his nose is horrid, and did you see how his tie was tied? You always tie yours so well—and I always have adored your nose. As though I ever dreamed of flirting with another man—"

"Are you sure?" asked the disgruntled young man. "I don't want to be unjust, but—"

"Patterson," the pretty young woman told him, "all the while I was dancing and talking with him I was wondering what you were doing—and how I could break away—"

VOTE FOR

Franklin D. Mather For State Senator

Franklin D. Mather

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for State Senator

He has served two terms in the State Legislature as Assemblyman from the 67th District, having received the Republican nomination four years ago, thereby defeating the incumbent, who is now the opposing candidate for State Senator. Two years later he was nominated without opposition and was elected by an exceptionally large vote.

As a member of the Legislature he stood for the ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment; for the Harris and Wright Enforcement Acts; for the conservation and development of the resources of the state in the interests of the people; for the great educational program of the Legislature; and for its just and generous provisions for the war veterans.

He stood firmly for the King Equalization of Taxation Bill against the desperate endeavors of the public utility corporations, aided and abetted by the "Better America Federation," alias the "Association for Betterment of Public Service," to defeat that bill that they might thereby evade their equitable share of taxation.

HIS PLATFORM

He stands for all necessary constructive legislation.

He regards the public welfare as paramount always to special interests.

He is in favor of the most rigid economy of administration consistent with efficiency.

He is opposed to the "Better America Federation," the "Association for Betterment of Public Service" and all other organizations which would destroy the Primary and the Initiative and return to the old system of party caucuses and conventions and political bosses.

He is a PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICAN.

He has been a resident of Southern California thirty-five years.

He will be grateful for your support and if elected will render faithful and efficient service.

PRIMARY ELECTION, AUGUST 29, 1922

DESPONDENT MAN COMMITTS SUICIDE

George E. Grey, Carpenter, Shoots Himself in Stomach

Despondent over ill health, George E. Grey killed himself at 8 o'clock Monday morning in his room in a house on North Brand boulevard. He fired a bullet from a .25 caliber Colts automatic revolver into his stomach. The bullet penetrated the man's body and was found lying under him on the bed by police officers.

Other roomers in the house heard the shot and rushed to the man's room. He was still alive, but died before he could be taken to the hospital. Chief of Police Fraser took charge of the dead man's effects and ordered the body taken to the undertaking parlor of L. G. Scovren & Co., where it will be held until the man's relatives can be heard from.

The dead man, who was a carpenter, was about 68 years old. He had been living at the above address for more than two years. He was a member of the carpenters' union in Glendale and the Modern Woodmen of America in this city. A card was found among his effects requesting that in the event of a serious illness or accident that Mary A. Grey of Salt Lake City, Utah, be notified. Chief Fraser ordered that the woman be notified of the suicide. An attempt will be made to ascertain whether the woman is wife, daughter or sister of the dead man.

According to people in the rooming house who knew the man, he has been in ill health for some time. He is said to have had heart trouble and for several months has been unable to do more than a few days' work at a time on account of his illness. The man left no message or reason for his act and it is believed that he was despondent because of ill health.

Police officers say that death was the result of shock rather than from the actual effects of the bullet. The bullet was of small caliber and did not strike a vital part. The man had fired with the intention of the bullet piercing the heart. Instead it entered his body at about 12 o'clock of the stomach.

The man's personal effects are being held at the police station, awaiting instructions from relatives.

HEARST-JOHNSON IN OLD ALLIANCE

launched against his character. No living man can say a word against the character and integrity of Mr. Moore—I cannot say so much for Mr. Johnson.

He said that Mr. Johnson has refused to deny that he received $10,000 from Hearst for defending his newspapers against charges preferred by a rival press service. He said that Johnson will, on the day before election, answer the mooted questions that have been asked him and by answering secure a landslide of votes. Mr. James said that the landslide would bury Mr. Johnson beneath it.

Mary C. DeMund led the audience in singing campaign songs written by herself and other ardent Moore supporters. She was assisted by Thomas A. Hughes.

The game was the first game that the locals have played this season, as every man on the All-stars is a picked man. Pirrone picked his team from among the other teams of the semi-professional teams of Los Angeles and each man is supposed to be the best man on his team. The final score was 16 to 15.

PIKES PEAK IS LATEST DANCE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 28.—There's at least one place in the United States where the jazz dancers don't cavort in the new and "peppy" steps.

It isn't because there are any objections. But the dancers can't stand a tramping on Pike's Peak. Up on the summit of Pike's Peak the old-fashioned waltzes are the most popular among the dancers. When one exercises violently at an altitude of 14,000 feet the thin air soon puts an end to the activity. Mountain sickness results.

The Pikes Peak tiddle is an invention of the "upper regions." It's a slow, graceful dance not calculated to shorten the breath unduly.

At that, however, sitting out is mighty popular—with the moon and stars 14,000 feet closer.

MRS. PECKHAM IS INJURED IN CAR

ROOSEVELT CHANGED HIS VIEW ON JOHNSON, SAYS A FORMER FRIEND OF BOTH

Former Auditor of Treasury Declares Campaign of 1916 Altered Great American's Opinion of California's Representative

CHARGED WITH DISLOYALTY TO HIS PARTY
Old Friend of Teddy Tells of His Own Relations With Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt During Term of Office in Washington

R. S. Person of 212 East California, this city, who was auditor of the treasury for the interior department at Washington under Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt, takes issue with some of the representations which he says have been made by Senator Hiram Johnson and his supporters concerning the sentiments entertained by Roosevelt toward Johnson. In speaking of the matter, he said:

"During my term of office under him my relations with Roosevelt were of a personal and political nature. After I retired from the public service my relations with him were largely personal.

"I knew him for many years before he was president and for a long time after he was president. We were in Dakota at the same time and had many common interests. I came to California in 1915 and after that carried on a correspondence with him intermittently and yet more or less regularly. His last letter to me reached me just prior to his death and my last letter to him reached Oyster Bay the day following his death, and was returned to me unopened.

"All during 1916 the correspondence between Mr. Roosevelt and myself covering a wide range of subjects, all of a public nature, political and military, was of a confidential nature, and Roosevelt's letters to me are many of them marked 'confidential.'

"The point I make is this, that Hiram Johnson today is putting out literature with the endorsement of Roosevelt given to him in 1912 emblazoned for the manifest purpose of leading the admirers of Roosevelt to give him their support.

"There is an unwritten law in Washington that an interviewer of the president shall never leave the White House and quote the president's language. They may be at liberty to state what they think the president's attitude is on any subject which the interview touched on, but must never quote the president's language.

"If Mr. Roosevelt's letters to me had not most of them been marked 'confidential,' I would not feel at liberty to publish or quote literally from them, but I make this statement on my own responsibility."

MISS COOKMAN IS MONDAY'S ENTRIES BRIDE OF EARL THOMSON

United by Father at Pacific Avenue Methodist Church

One of the most beautiful weddings, and one of national interest, was solemnized Saturday evening, when Miss Anne E. Cookman and Earl J. Thomson were united in marriage. The ceremony taking place at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church, the bride's father, Rev. W. W. Cookman, former pastor of that church, officiating.

The church was a bower of white carnations and roses, and at the end of each row of seats was a large bunch of pink carnations, tied with tulle.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played softly on the piano by Miss Ethel Wilson. Just preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts sang very beautifully "At Dawning," and "O Promise Me," accompanied by Miss Ethel Wilson at the piano. Mrs. Cookman, the bride, was escorted by her father, the Rev. W. W. Cookman, and by Miss Wilson, accompanied by Miss Genevieve Mulligan on the violin, played softly "I Love You Truly."

The party came to the church led by the four ushers, William Cookman, Jr., Alfred Cookman, brothers of the bride, Arthur Wilcox and Harry Perry of Tulare. The ring bearer, little Harry Billy Perry, who wore a white linen suit, came first. Mary Moore, the flower girl, came next, dressed in white organdy and carrying a basket filled with pink roses. The two bridesmaids, Miss Helen Chase of Whittier and Miss Margaret Cash of Los Angeles, wore pale green tulle and carried pink roses. Then came the beautiful bride on the arm of her father, meeting the groom at the altar. She was most charming in the wedding gown of her mother and sister, Mrs. Perry, made of duchess satin, trimmed with the Taft lace, five generations old. Mrs. Cookman is a cousin of ex-President Taft. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley, and he long, flowing veil, which came down over the graceful train of her gown, was fastened with orange blossoms.

Mrs. Cookman, the bride's mother, was gowned in black silk and lace, while her daughter, Mrs. Harry Perry, wore pale green chiffon. Mrs. Thomson, mother of the groom, wore gray silk crepe, and Mrs. Alfred Cookman, sister-in-law of the bride, looked charming in white satin.

An elaborate reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Cookman, 638 North Louise street, which was attended by about 175 guests. Later in the evening the young couple left for

THE GOVERNORSHIP

Governor Stephens asked in a recent address if the government of California is to belong to the people, or to a few selfish interests. The temper of the audience indicated a preference for having it continue to belong to the people. Perhaps it is natural for a railroad corporation to shirk its share of taxes. If permitted to follow such inclination, doubtless its attitude towards Governor Stephens would be less hostile. The outcry against extravagance is an empty noise, made with intent to deceive, but failing in the attempt. It arises from the fact that the corporations are being made to bear a just proportion of state expenses.

Repeatedly and completely has the truth been shown that money is not being wasted. On the contrary, it is being expended as the voters of the state desired, and as definitely stipulated by legislative enactment. Long tables of shrewdly manipulated figures have been compiled in the effort to prove the unnecessary and wasteful expenditure of funds. There has been no shadow of proof adduced. On the contrary the demonstration that economy has been the rule, is clear. An explanation of the misleading figures has been made in these columns many times. There is no occasion for threshing old straw again.

Governor Stephens stands on his record, not as compiled by his enemies, but as it actually is. The corporations are not pleased with him. Happily, the corporations are not directing the destinies of this commonwealth. Their endeavors to oust an administration that has held them in check, will fail because they deserve to fail.

LAST MOMENT TACTICS

During the final days of the campaign there come from San Francisco frantic announcements of desire to place large sums on Senator Johnson. Such conduct is likely to mark the closing hours of a losing fight. It is the equivalent of the graveyard whistle.

The alleged propositions either were trick tactics, or they were based on a set of purported facts that lacked the important element of verity. Such conditions as they indicated have not appeared in this part of the state. There has been no sign of them. On the contrary, the campaign has seemed to be leading up to the certain defeat of Johnson.

He had not made good at Washington. He was even farther from making good when on the platform he sought to defend his indefensible course. Declining to meet the issues, he kept bawling loudly for somebody to name the issues. He didn't know what all the fuss was about. He had done as he had pleased, going as he knew at the time, directly against the wishes of California. He had made common cause with Hearst in fighting the administration, instead of supporting it as he was in honor bound to do. Yet he could see no reason why his faithlessness should not be accepted as faithfulness, and the reward of virtue be his.

When in 1916 Willis Booth gave Johnson a lively rivalry in San Francisco, Johnson was at the very zenith of his influence. Willis Booth, on the other hand, could not muster any such strength as Charles C. Moore quickly began to draw there, the Moore following increasing from the start. In the south, where it might have been expected there would be some hanging back from Moore on the ground that he is a northern man, nothing of the kind appeared. Moore, from every circumstance that formulates judgment, is stronger here now even than Booth was six years ago. In the north he has an enthusiastic support, such as Booth never approximated.

Where then do the bettors get the notion that an easy victory awaits Johnson? In part it is the familiar "delusion of hope." In greater part, it is sheer bluff.

PRESUMING ON FREEDOM

There has been frequent occasion of late to mention the subject of freedom of speech and press. Such freedom rests upon constitutional guaranty. Curtailment of it is not desirable. The individual not satisfied with certain phases of government has undeniable right to publish his opinion. If he is able to show that his opinion may be sound, the ballot affords the means by which it may be put to the test. But under the pretense that freedom is license, many have gone to excesses, in perpetration of which no law of the land affords them protection. When they plan to overthrow the government by revolutionary methods, they become public enemies. When they foment crimes of violence, they are nothing less than criminals. That then they are cowardly enough to seek shelter under the very constitution they would destroy adds to the degree of their offending.

There is an organization at war with organized society. Ascribe its activities to the reds of Moscow, the I. W. W. of this country, or whatever, the fact remains that the conduct of adherents to it, has all the color of treason. Men and women who give aid and comfort to these enemies are as guilty of treason as though the gage of battle had been thrown down and accepted, and an armed host hammering at the gates, was receiving support of the raving red malcontents within.

Political organizations that dare not meet in the open, dare not proclaim to the world their full purpose; gathering as plotters of disasters, advocates of bombing; planning the wreck of trains, the blowing up of buildings, the burning of harvests—these do not come under the shielding benignity of any constitution ever devised by lovers of liberty. They are aliens, at least morally. It is as necessary to check them as to check the careers of burglars and assassins, who, indeed, are more admirable types, since they do possess the quality of courage.

Doubtless in the war some were imprisoned under the espionage act, who had intended no harm. Most of those locked up, however, were malign agents of mischief, not merely disloyal, but intent on evil. It is to be regretted that some of the more culpable escaped the penalty they had richly earned. The result is now to be observed. These men and women are busy again teaching and practicing the doctrine of sabotage. They transmute into felony the hatred that is in their hearts. When apprehended they aver frantically that the constitution gives them "freedom of speech and press." To such freedom they are welcome. The constitution, however, does not recognize the bomb and the torch as properly the instrumentalities through which the freedom is to be exercised.

A candidate for the governorship says that if elected he will save the taxpayers of the state $115,000,000 in four years without in any manner impairing the effectiveness of the administration, or endangering the public welfare. While in the promising mood he might as well have said he not only would abolish taxation, but pay every citizen a fair wage just for being a citizen.

Half a mind to is equal to a whole mind not to.

Will Not Ridicule the Law

By DR. FRANK CRANE

An announcement was recently made that Edward F. Albee, president of the Keith circuit of theaters, had given orders that hereafter all wet and dry wheezes, whether serious or humorous, would be barred and likely to subject the person or team using them to being "closed" without notice. Each house manager has been directed by Mr. Albee to delete from all songs, patter, and cross-fire stuff anything which smacks of ridicule of Mr. Volstead and his well-known law, continues the news items.

A similar law affecting the Orpheum or western circuit was promulgated some time ago.

DR. FRANK CRANE Just what reason lies behind this action was not stated. Probably the principal reason is that the public is growing weary of this particular variety of cackle. Nothing grows stale more quickly than wit. No people have to step along as lively as the humorous.

The lawyer, the doctor, the preacher, the grocer, and the cook may repeat: In fact they are usually expected to repeat. If they do anything good once, we want them to do it again, but the wretched comedian has everlastingly to devise something new. No wonder they are usually solemn-looking people and seem over-worked and grow prematurely aged.

There may be another reason behind this act of Mr. Albee's, however, and we hope there is. And that reason is that no institution, and the vaudeville is an institution, can afford to ridicule the law.

The constitutional amendment prohibiting alcoholic beverages is the supreme law of the United States.

It may be unpopular in some portions of New York City, as the law prohibiting slavery is unpopular in some portions of South Carolina, but it is the law just the same.

And ridiculing the law and educating the vast population of morons to regard the law with contempt, is dangerous business.

For there is no particular logical reason why a man should turn up his nose at the prohibition law and how his head to the law against murder or arson.

If we don't like the law we can get rid of it by the simplest means in the world, for we can repeal it.

Instead of all this goose cackling about the law being unpopular and against the will of the majority, the thing for those to do who do not like it is to go to work and get it repealed.

If they can't, they should shut up.

QUERIES

(Find the error in this article)

"Drive Slow"

K. Mathieson: "Can you give any plausible reason for the mandatory order that insists on 'Drive Slow' at every public school in the city? (New York). Everybody, outside the New York Board of Education, knows that 'Drive Slowly' is sanctioned by grammatical writers. Please tell us—your readers—whether the Board of Education, or certified grammatical construction is the correct form." Answer: Shall we attribute the authorship of the sign in question to the New York Board of Education or to the Police Department? In the first place, let us make sure of our indictment; in the second place, let us make sure of our own ground. Slow for slowly is given as a variant in the New Standard, and as "poetical or colloquial" in the Century. Slow is given as an adverb in Webster and in the Oxford. Classic writers have used slow as an adverb in the past; as, "We drove very slow" (Thackeray). The well entrenched "Drive fast" has unquestionably encouraged the use of "Drive slow." "Drive slowly" is correct, but the determined use of "Drive Slow" by municipal departments and in colloquial speech, if persisted in, may yet legitimate the expression, and endow it with the dignity of good idiomatic English.

Making a Comparative

"An Amateur Observer": "May I ask if the following sentence taken from an editorial in the New York Times is correct: 'Then you may arrive at a juster notion of German resources? Would not more just be the correct expression? Whilst on this subject I would like your opinion of the signs on all bridges crossing the Long Island Railway tracks, viz: 'Do not walk nor trespass on this bridge.' Would not or replace nor advantageously?' Answer: The comparative of an adjective may be formed by adding er, or by preceding the adjective by more. Monosyllabic adjectives are made comparative more often by the addition of er. Euphony and the practice of good writers are the arbiters. It seems to me that juster is an euphonic as more just. Neither and nor go together; so do not and nor. It is correct to say "Do not walk nor trespass." If you want to be very emphatic it is correct to say "Do not walk nor trespass."

THE LISTENING POST

The Old Man of the Sea.
You remember him perhaps.
He sniveled and slobbered and made you pity him and let him get on your back.
And there he fastened himself and you could not shake him off.

Not a pleasant companion to be sure.
For it was difficult to make your way and still carry the old man of the sea on your back.

But you got him there.
Whether you did it by your own volition or not.

And there he staid.

With the old man of the sea on your back you could not make the progress you would have made without him.

It is difficult enough to swim without a weight on your back.

That holds you down and impedes your movements.

The swimmer wants freedom of action.

So too does the struggler in any walk of life.

Whether he is swimming in the sea or trudging up a hill.

He does not make fair progress when he carries too big a load.

Any many of us are making the struggle with an Old Man of the Sea on our backs.

He is not an agreeable companion.

Even if we did let him get up there.

Perhaps we did not realize what a burden he would become.

But there he is.

And there he determines to stay.

Regardless of our effort to get rid of him.

Habit is an Old Man of the Sea.

Fixed way back there somewhere.
The cultivation of dependence upon some unnecessary thing.
And habit becomes an Old Man of the Sea.
Sometimes a physical bandit.
Sometimes a mental one.

The habit of self-gratification.
Verily an Old Man of the Sea.
Constant indulgence of self.

Until the Old Man grows heavier and heavier and interferes more and more with struggle.

Personal extravagance.

Disregard of obligations.

Morbid imaginings.

Quick and hasty judgments.

Laziness and indolence and lack of spirit.

All more Old Men of the Sea.

Petty hatreds and dislikes.

Intolerance and bigotry.

Unfriendliness.

Suspicion.

Surliness and crabbedness and churlishness.

More Old Men of the Sea.

And you will find many a struggler worn out and despairing because of the Old Man of the Sea he got on his back sometime.

The Old Man of mental tendency.

Of physical addiction.

Of personal indulgence.

It's hard to get the Old Man of the Sea off your back once he has got up there.

But—

You don't need to let him get up in the first place.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Crowned—By Amy Lowell (1874-)

You came to me bearing bright roses,
Red like the wine of your heart;
You twisted them into a garland
To set me aside from the mart.
Red roses to crown me your lover,
And I walked aureoled and apart.

Enslaved and encircled, I bore it,
Proud token of my gift to you.
The petals waned paler, and shriveled,
And dropped; and the thorns started through.
Bitter tears to proclaim me your lover,
A diadem woven with rue.

Finger Nails Tell Doctor Past Illness of Patients

Police find finger-prints an infallible guide to identification, but finger nails carry a record of importance to the doctor.

"The hypersensitive nails are mirrors which reflect the disturbances of nutrition which fever and constitutional diseases have produced in our body," says Dr. William H. Rosenau of Baltimore after a study of many cases in Vienna and at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore.

"Small superficial depressions varying in size from that of a pin point to that of a pin head occur after about 85 per cent of the cases of acute rheumatic fever and St. Vitus' dance, particularly when heart complications are present," he says. "These changes are temporary and may disappear to reappear after a recurrence of the same disease or some other infectious disease. A certain area of the tissue of the nail root is thrown out of function temporarily by the onset of the fever and five weeks or more later these little depressions are seen on the nail. This period corresponds to the time required for the part affected to grow out from beneath the skin. One may see these changes as late as fifteen years after the last attack of rheumatic fever."

On the average a nail completely renews itself in 105 to 106 days. In the child it grows within from eighty to ninety-six days and in the adult in from 120 to 132 days. The growth is more rapid in grown people than children and slowest in old age. On account of its smaller size, the child's nail is renewed in a shorter time than the adult's although it grows slower. Nail growth is more rapid in summer than in winter. Seven-tenths of the cases of active tuberculosis also show these pits, but they are often associated with grooves.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

MR. HARDING'S POSITION

(Chicago Tribune)

It is a test of administration, Mr. President, and one which determines the fate of administrations. You have made a considered proposal to these railroad executives and they virtually have asked you to confine yourself to the question of marines in Nicaragua and Haiti and of American cable rights in Yap.

You are not an unlimited monarch, but there is one thing the average good-natured American citizen does not like to hear, and that is any group of people telling the President of the United States to go to the devil when he plainly is trying to protect them. What they like to see, then, is the big stick falling on the scoundrels of the group.

The moral is as big and plain as the side of a barn. Swing the big stick, Mr. President, and then ease will run as they should and coal will be mined as it is needed.

UNION OF LOYALTY

(Marion Star)

Someone has made the suggestion that a union of common sense be formed to keep down strife; the intent may be, and doubtless is, well meant. But the only union of common sense that will ever be formed in this country is a union of loyalty, with every man, woman and child a union in self.

Loyalty is the big need today as it was in times during the war and before the war. We do not mean loyalty to party, loyalty to creed, although there can be no sane objection to either; but we mean—loyalty to country, the public as a whole, for it is the whole public that makes up the republic.

All policies of any government are relatively unimportant alongside the biggest thing any government possesses, and this is loyalty. Without it government falls and anarchy prevails.

Let every man become as a union unto himself, let every woman become as a union unto herself, let every child be taught to become as a union unto himself—let all become as a union for this great union of the States of North America, "one for all and all for one."

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Hearst's obsession that he is to be president is not a thing of recent growth. Years ago a delegate from California nominated him in convention at St. Louis. This was Mike Tarpey, who used to do queer things.

When Hearst revealed to one of his editors a desire to be mayor of New York, the editor, now dead, regarded the proposition as a joke. Trying hard not to grin, he said to his chief, "That's too small a job for you. Go after the governorship." Thus Hearst was inoculated with a new sort of political serum. He didn't win the governorship, but he afforded the people of New York many a hearty laugh.

All the time he was conscious of the gnawing of the presidential bug. Some of his intimates, aware of his state of mind, had difficulty in avoiding lese majeste, the desire to snigger in his face being strong.

James Creelman, at that time rated high among American foreign correspondents, was talking about the matter one day. He had worked for Hearst, particularly after the murder of McKinley, which had thrown suspicion on every Hearst publication.

"I helped pull that fellow out of the hole," said Creelman. "He is utterly selfish. He lacks the faculty of appreciation. He is dead on the moral side. I am an American, but if the people of the United States ever elect Hearst president, I'll go to China. I would be ashamed to live in this country a day."

Creelman has gone, dying at his post of duty. Hearst and the presidential bug continue to exist in their own congenial society.

The matter is particularly interesting to California, where a senator is seeking to be continued in office through republican votes, although he is in the employ, and is acting as the mouthpiece of this same Hearst, helping the latter nurse the presidential bug.

Everything else aside, Johnson's association with Hearst ought to be enough to end a senatorial career unmarked of notable achievement, and unadorned of loyalty.

By the terms of a bill introduced into the house, a reward of $1,000,000 would be paid for cures for certain diseases that up to the present have baffled science and medicine.

It is a safe prediction that the bill never will come out of committee. Were it to be made into a law, the million dollars in question could remain indefinitely in the treasury, undisturbed and secure.

The terms of the bill call for a specific rather than for a system of treatments. On the list are consumption, which already yields to modern methods; cancer, which remains singularly obdurate, and as a fattener of mortuary totals, is going strong. There are several others, including the familiar and useful dementia praecox.

Scientists are striving to their utmost to conquer disease. Their success has been remarkable. Some of the worst maladies have been eliminated. And the prospect of a million-dollar reward could not inspire scientists to do more. They are not working for financial gain.

Better turn the million over to them to use in research.

When a person happens to get bitten by a dog, the experiences are painful enough.

It is not fair to try to scare the victim into thinking the dog was "mad" or that if "mad" any serious result will follow. A dog bite is as bad as another puncture of the same size, although much to be preferred to violent contact with a rusty nail.

San Francisco is reported by rumor (false) to be distressingly dry.

It will be moistened soon by the tears of the enthusiasts who placed their money on Johnson.

Senator Johnson declared that he never refused to answer questions.

A lady propounded one, and his reply was an insulting evasion. At a later meeting, ex-service men sought to ask questions. They were hooded by the Johnson followers. One was a little more persistent. The Johnson followers thereupon threw him out.

A vote for Johnson is a vote for Hearst.

Hearst pulls the strings as Johnson performs.

The offer of a San Francisco woman to purchase the wife of another man does not seem to have won general approval. While marriage has been known to be a matter of barter and sale in many instances, it is customary to veil financial details. Perhaps the wife regarded the figure of $100 per month as too small.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

During one of my previous existences I must have bitten a Buddha in the leg and the offended deity has been paying me out. He has given me a brother-in-law, who is the gnarlish little snipe I know. Whenever we get together we quarrel.

"You're wrong, Pilgrim," he says, pushing out his front buttons. "Absolutely wrong. Let me explain the situation—"

And he tells me in dogmatic one-syllable words until I blow up.

"Listen, fish," I say. "I may be wrong. I have been wrong many times in my life. But what you must say when we are discussing matters of no material importance to either of us is:

"I disagree with you, Pilgrim. I think you are in error. Let me explain my views."

"That way," I said, "the crime wave in this neighborhood will cease to impend as heavily as it does now."

My brother-in-law then picks up the conversation where he left it drop.

"You're wrong, Pilgrim," he says. "Your facts turned green the moment you put them on and your deductions taste like copper pennies. What you say is not so—"

Then I rise with a howl and go away, and when I come back I find that my sister-in-law and my wife have had a spat over their husbands, neither of whom is worth the effort, and that my relatives by marriage have gone home, and for the remainder of the evening I listen to moral homilies by Mrs. Pilgrim, who is a bear in this line. But when I listen with a smile, my futile brother-in-law says:

"You're wrong, Pilgrim. Absolutely wrong. Now let me explain the situation—"

My wife asks me how I could sit like a lump and let that little, fat garlic put it all over me. She wants to know if I have any spirit at all.

"To think of him daring to say a thing like that to you," she says loyally. "You know forthright times more than he does. But I never knew you to be so poor-spirited."

So I lose both ways. My only hope is that I can induce my brother-in-law, by kind and moderate words, to abate that insulting cockiness of his.

"Please," I'm going to say to him. "Just once, for the sake of my married happiness. This time don't say 'You're wrong.' This time say it with a little politeness."

"I think you're mistaken."

JOHNSON ENDS CAMPAIGN
 Summarizes Pledges of To Be Devoted to Toys, China and House Furnishings

"At the request of several hundred of the best-known citizens of this senatorial district, I became a candidate for the republican nomination for the state senate," said A. Burlingame Johnson, today.
 "My opponent had already announced himself for the position. Those asking me to stand for the nomination gave as their reason, the fact that my education and life's work, both official and business operations tended to prepare me for the special duties of a legislator.
 "I have tried to be a leader, not a follower, whether in business or public life. I cannot be content with less, or forego to strive for a full share in the direction of any affair with which I am associated. Where I have succeeded I believe it is due to the fact that I spent my college days in technical preparation and have never abandoned my life's work, and do not abandon it in seeking this position. It is my ambition to serve. I ask no other reward.

"The campaign is closed. It has been clean on my part, free from mis-statements or misrepresentation of my opponent.
 "I have offered my services pledged only to the best interest of all the people. If I am able, through such experience as I have had to contribute to the lessening of the great tax-burden that is borne by the people of California, then I will be amply rewarded for such sacrifice as the duties of the office may impose upon me. If you, the people, of the 36th senatorial district want me to serve, you say so with your ballots at the polls tomorrow. If not, I shall continue to be with you in every movement that makes for a greater and finer Southern California. It needs no office to enlist my services, or keep me near the great throbbing heart of our body politic."

REGIONAL PLAN CHAIRMAN HERE

George A. Damon, chairman of the northeast district of the Regional Planning conference to Los Angeles county, was in Glendale Monday, completing plans for the monthly conference to be held in Glendale on September 16. The meeting will be held in Verdugo Woodlands at the Old Adobe. There will be three sessions on that day. The morning session will be devoted to the discussion of problems that are facing Glendale and vicinity. The noon conference

In order to meet the demand of Glendale's buying public, the Pendroy Dry Goods company is adding a department of toys, china and house furnishings.
 About 30 days ago, the basement of this large department store was full of goods in storage and William A. Baker, manager of this new department, started to put in partitions and fixtures. He has made a complete store out of it, consisting of three departments. First is the china, carrying about 25 patterns in open stock, of dinner ware. It will also include a full line of lead and blown glass, as well as the famous Libby cut glass.

There will be a complete toy department carrying all the leading things in games, beautiful dolls and wheel goods.
 The complete household goods department will consist of all the three lines of enamel ware; three lines of aluminum ware, the celebrated Buck ranges, and a full line of refrigerators and other house-keeping necessities. It will be a store complete in itself.
 The work is nearing completion and the department will open Friday. It is considered by the best authorities to be quite a feat to accomplish what they have in the short period of 30 days.
 Mr. Baker was formerly connected with one of the large department stores in Denver, Colo., and has had 25 years' experience in this business. He knows the business from beginning to end.
 This department will carry the most complete line in the city and will give the Glendale buying public something they all need. They aim to give the public good value all the way through and all the time. There will be no need of anyone going to Los Angeles for such articles, as the prices will be absolutely in keeping with any of the largest department stores in Los Angeles.

WHERE TO VOTE AT LA CRESCENTA

MOORE VOTERS

If you want an auto to take you to your polling place, call Glendale 2797 (Headquarters, 108 South Brand) or Glendale 99. Vote as early as you can. Encourage your neighbor to vote, for in many ways tomorrow's primary is more important than the November election.

Vote for the Bonds for Paving Streets Adjacent to Schools in Glendale

Provide Proper Approaches to the Schools for Your Children

Vote "Yes" on the Proposition Quoted Below

Doran St. School, cor. Doran and Everett Sts. The result of not having money to pave streets adjacent to school buildings

"Shall the City of Glendale incur a bonded debt of $35,000.00 for the improvement of streets (including the installation therein of water pipes and appurtenances for fire protection and the municipal water supply), adjacent to public school property and other public property in the City of Glendale?"

Yes	X
No

As one of the results of the very rapid growth of our city the approaches to nearly all of our schools are in very bad condition, and a great deal of street improvement work is necessary.

The Board of Education is unable to meet the situation because of the large amount involved in improving the street adjacent to twelve school buildings. If this matter had to be taken care of out of the current funds of the district, and it cannot be otherwise taken care of except by the proposed bond issue, it would seriously cripple the work of the schools for the coming year.

It is very important both from the standpoint of the comfort and convenience of the children in the schools and from the standpoint of advertising Glendale as a progressive city in public matters, that the streets adjacent to the schools and other public buildings should be in excellent condition at all times.

The effect of not having the funds to meet this emergency may be seen by a visit to the Doran Street school on the corner of Doran and Everett streets, where it was found necessary on three sides of the school grounds to make half a street, leaving a dirt road on the school side.

The Board of Education and the City Council have held several conferences looking toward a solution of the problem, and have found it impossible to solve it in any other way except by the proposed bond issue.

If these bonds are not voted it is inevitable that every school in Glendale will be surrounded by half-made streets, a condition which the progressive citizens of Glendale will not tolerate.

Who's Who in Primaries

Good Government is the direct result of public interest in politics. The undesirable citizen cannot hold office by consent of the electorate when the electorate is sufficiently interested to ascertain the character of such a candidate. The people as a whole seek men and women of good character for public office. It is only when the electorate is careless and negligent that the other kind of office seeker can be successful. The people of Glendale should examine carefully the records of those coming before them at the Primary Election, August 29th. Only by so doing can wise selection be assured. The candidates whose names appear on this page invite investigation.

Solely upon my fitness for the position, I respectfully present myself as a

Candidate for Supervisor Fifth District, Los Angeles County

J. W. FAWKES
Inventor and Patentee of the Aerial Trolley Car
140 S. Olive Avenue
Telephone 53-M, Burbank, Calif.

Biographical:—

Born in Pennsylvania in 1861. For 34 years a resident and taxpayer in Los Angeles county. On national issues, Republican; local, Independent; religion, Orthodox. A successful business man, always progressive. Widely traveled in America and abroad, giving me, I believe, a broader vision of men and affairs.

My Platform

(1) I fully realize that the management of a corporation with a capital of Fifty Million Dollars, is a sacred trust and a great undertaking. It is too sacred to become a political football. My first effort will be to have all election officers appointed by the Registrar of Voters instead of the Supervisors, thus crushing a political machine that is dangerous.

(2) I will apply business methods to every problem, giving special attention to further Flood Control, more and better Highways, Consolidation of City and County government, saving taxpayers tremendous sums of money now uselessly wasted, and increasing school facilities in both quantity and quality.

More than three hundred of the leading business men of Burbank, Glendale and San Fernando, sponsored my nomination. If you work and vote for your own best interest, Fawkes will be elected at the Primaries. Pass this down the line.

VOTE FOR Charles H. Kelley PASADENA'S CHIEF OF POLICE FOR SHERIFF

Mr. Kelley has made a record that reflects great credit upon him as an officer and citizen. He has been progressive and has worked for every movement which had as its aim the upbuilding of Southern California. He has been a terror to the bootleggers and has done more to stamp out their nefarious business than any other officer in the section where he has worked.

He is a member of the following orders and a good worker in each: The Kiwanis Club, Elks, Lions' Club, Scottish Rite, Shriners, American Legion, and other organizations of minor importance. Read what the daily papers of Los Angeles have to say about him, as follows:

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT OF CHAS. H. KELLEY

It is confidently declared by the friends of Charles H. Kelley that the fighting Chief of Police of Pasadena will carry that city at the primaries by 15,000 majority, which means Chief Kelley will get most of the votes. Every bootlegging sympathizer, every man afraid of his unlawful calling, will vote against Kelley, but such are few and far between in the City of Roses.

There is a great reason for the confidence of Chief Kelley's supporters in Pasadena. Bootleggers shun Pasadena because they know and fear Kelley. The chief is a red-blooded American, who loves his country, reverences its fundamental law, understands the awful demoralizing tendency of the illicit liquor traffic, its tendency to destroy the morals of the rising generation, the present boys and girls who will rule the Southland tomorrow. He knows the tremendous influence the illicit liquor traffic has had and is having upon rampant crime, and, knowing, has bent all the power to his official position in Pasadena to the destruction of the bootleggers.

Kelley pledges himself to destroy the bootlegging industry in Los Angeles County. He declares the Ku Klux Klan raid in Inglewood, which resulted in the tragic death of one of the leading citizens, would never have been if he had been the sheriff of Los Angeles County, because the reason for the Ku Klux Klan would never have existed.

Kelley is a man of his word. He is not a long-hair. He will not interfere with the personal liberty of American citizens, but he is a believer in the supremacy of the law, and especially the fundamental law of the United States of America, and "by the Eternal," using the expression a great American made famous in other crises of the country, Kelley means to wipe out the still skunks who, for their selfish profit, would demoralize and destroy the nation which for almost a century and a half has been the hope of the world.

Good people of this community, remember your children, remember your country, remember the vital need of both at the present time is the destruction of the insidious foe of all law and all respect for law. The foe is foreign. Kelley is American, and, if elected, will destroy the foe.

Elect Charles H. Kelley sheriff and give him the opportunity to do for Los Angeles County what he has done in Pasadena, and set a striking example for every American county in the United States of America.

To the Voters of the Fifth Supervisor District

One year ago I was appointed Supervisor of the Fifth District, to fill the office of Supervisor Dodge. I am now a candidate for election for the remainder of that term.

I believe I am not entirely unknown to the people of Los Angeles County. I have served for four consecutive terms in the State Legislature, two terms as Speaker of the Assembly. During that time it has been my privilege and good fortune to assist in promoting many important measures making for the advancement and prosperity of California, including ratification of National Woman Suffrage, National Prohibition, Soldier Land Settlement, Good Road Bonds, State Aid for Flood Control and Water Conservation in Southern California, Law Enforcement, Anti-Alien Land Law, better State support for schools, and for orphaned children, and a Southern Branch University.

During the world war I served for eighteen months as a member of the Southern California District Draft Board, and my oldest son served as a soldier overseas.

During the past year I have become somewhat familiar with the needs and conditions of my District and of this great County.

I have always advocated clean and efficient government at the very least cost.

I am content to submit my record to the voters of the District. I have no political ambitions other than to render faithful and conscientious service in any position to which I may be called.

Very truly yours,

HENRY W. WRIGHT.

SIDNEY S. GILHULY

For Member of the State
Board of Equalization,
Fourth District

Mr. Gilhuly is endorsed by able business men throughout this section and is strongly supported by them.

IF YOU WANT YOUR INTERESTS CAREFULLY GUARDED BY A GOOD MAN, CAST YOUR VOTE FOR GILHULY AT THE PRIMARY ELECTION TOMORROW.

Ex-Governor Markham Endorses A. Burlingame Johnson

In my own public life I have found that those who have been successful in their own affairs are best fitted to cope with the problems of legislation and the business of the State.

I am, therefore, supporting Mr. A. Burlingame Johnson for State Senator, because he has stood the test of experience in public affairs and in his business affairs, therefore I believe him well equipped for the position and will vote for him for that reason.

GLENDALE HIGH MUSIC WORK ORGANIZED

Mrs. Gibson Will Direct Final Work of Those Who Go to College

The music department of Glendale Union high school is now organized for the coming school year.

Mrs. Gibson, head of the department, will direct the final work of students who expect to go to college. She will have classes in harmony and history of music. She will also have charge of the orchestra.

Mrs. Florence Parker, director of the Madrigal club, will have the voice work, and will direct the Glee clubs and conduct classes in voice and diction. Mrs. Parker has had exceptional training for voice work. Among her voice teachers are Richard Gaines of Boston Conservatory and the celebrated tenor, William Lavin of Detroit. She was soloist in Jefferson Avenue church and member of a quartet of professional singers for several years in Detroit. She has also had experience in opera production and in conducting large choruses and community singing.

Miss Elsie Maennel will teach piano classes, sight reading and appreciation. Miss Maennel holds public school music diplomas from Oberlin university and Northwestern university. She is a graduate of E. B. Kroeger's master class in piano instruction and an authorized teacher of the progressive piano course edited by Leopold Godowsky. She has had 11 years' experience public school music teacher.

A teacher for the band is yet to be selected. The 60-minute school period and having all music classes five times a week will greatly strengthen the music work and the teachers in this department are enthusiastic over the prospect of conducting their classes under such conditions.

Boys and girls in the orchestra and glee clubs will be trained in conducting and allowed at times, to direct their organization. Part of the work in the piano classes will be devoted to the developing of accompanists.

DR. PRITCHETT IS SUPPORTER OF CHAS. C. MOORE

Director Carnegie Foundation States Why He Favors Candidate

Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, of Santa Barbara, who has written this endorsement of Charles C. Moore for United States senator from California and a powerful arraignment of Senator Johnson, is a man of large affairs, who has made a deep study of political and official life. It is significant that a citizen whose deep insight into politics has been gained through association with men who employ and work with great masses of men and women all over the United States, should voluntarily choose to support Moore against Johnson. Dr. Pritchett is nationally known for his work as a director of the Carnegie foundation. He has always been an active, straightforward republican. His reputation as a scientist is world-wide, and his extensive travels and explorations have given him the very broadest of view.

The world today is called upon to solve problems, industrial, social, national, and international, more complex and more difficult than in any previous time in its history. It requires men who can talk effectively, as men who can think clearly. If we are to find a way out of the difficulties which beset us it must be found, not in the midst of heated talk and by exciting the prejudices of one group against another group, but by a possible human ill, but rather by clearly thinking out those fundamental solutions of human rights and of economic forces which, when solved, lead us to the right answer. Our country is unique in being governed by lawyers. In no other country does the congress and the separate legislatures contain a majority of lawyers. What ever advantages may lie in this situation it is clear that serious disadvantages have come by the over-multiplication of laws and the tendency to consider public questions from the standpoint of theoretical interpretation rather than from that of practical reality. Today we need in congress, not talkers, but thinkers, who can find the right answer and make that answer evident to the people of the country.

I believe Mr. Moore's election to the United States senate would constitute a great gain both for California and for the country, because I believe that he belongs to the group of thinking, constructive men. An engineer by profession, a business man by training, with a long experience in the administration of great affairs, he has nevertheless given himself generously and heartily to the public service with no thought of reward. His willingness to undertake the labor of this campaign is itself a generous act. His attitude toward the problems which the country faces is that of the reflective, trained, experienced thinker who seeks first to get the facts and then to follow those facts to their legitimate conclusion.

The United States senate needs today men of this constructive and reflective type, men who have a passion for the facts first and are then willing to follow where the facts lead. Mr. Moore belongs to the type of man who would do less talking and more thinking, and it is to such men that we must look if the country is to advance intellectually, morally and materially. We want men who think straight about our national problems, whether they be commercial, industrial, or educational, and we want men who think straight about our international relations and who are willing when the truth is known to accept it and to follow it. Such a man Mr. Moore's whole life shows him to be.

It is not possible to urge his election without some implied criticism of Senator Johnson. Such criticism does not mean my charge against the honesty and sincerity of Senator Johnson. The people who do most harm in political life are not so often those who have crooked morals, but those whose thinking is crooked, and Senator Johnson seems to be in this class. The measure which he advocates, the policies which he proposes in congress, are in almost all cases, destructive rather than constructive. He has great ability to tear down but little disposition to build up. Not only has he not been constructive in legislation, but he has opposed those measures which have the promise of constructive results.

The Four Power treaty, negotiated by President Harding and Secretary Hughes, is the most promising effort the world has seen toward the peaceful solution of the solution of the Far Eastern turmoil. It avoided entangling our government in formal alliances, but threw the moral power of the country on the side of peace and justice. Senator Johnson opposed it bitterly and voted against it. The inevitable conclusion to which one must come under these circumstances is that Senator Johnson doesn't think clearly enough upon the great constructive measures to represent the state of California in the congress of the United States.

I voice, I believe, the attitude of thoughtful republicans in California in saying that they cannot accept Senator Johnson's attitude toward the party to which he nominally belongs. There is such a thing as servile obedience to a party always despicable and demoralizing. There is, however, a great distinction between that attitude and that of practical loyalty. Senator Johnson has practically assumed that devotion to his own interests was above the devotion to his party. He has allowed himself, not with the president and the more thoughtful men of his own party, but with a little group of critics, who oppose, and oppose in the most bitter fashion, all constructive measures. While too great subservience to party is an unworthy attitude, nevertheless the man who holds himself independent of all party duty and obligation has ceased to be a useful member of a representative body. Government can be carried on only in a democracy by some fair alignment of parties and by the acceptance of party responsibility. Today there is a disposition in our country to destroy party government by creating a series of little parties, formed by groups which have some particular interest to serve, each group clamoring for its own advantage and seeking to gain that advantage at the expense of the public interest.

MANY 'SUCKERS' IN EAGLE ROCK

So Organizers of Illinois Find, Forty-two Registering

The Illinois club is proving that there are many "suckers" in Eagle Rock. Since former residents of that state decided to organize, 42 members have registered at the real estate office of Mrs. Schofield, who is with the Schofield, Liles & Sheppard firm at 732 East Colorado.

The register is open to all Illinois people, and when the time is ripe, there is to be a great "sucker" get-together, when old acquaintances are to be rejuvenated, and new associations formed.

Since the last publication of names, 14 have been added. Pearl and Lycurgus Starbuck, 153 North Royal drive, of Bement, Ill.; Mr. C. H. Gaylord, 138 North Royal drive, and Mrs. C. H. Gaylord of Chicago, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Miller, 123 Minnie C. Scott, 108 Stanley; Fred A. Moffett, Sycamore canyon, Glendale; Amy Howe, 108 Stanley, and Charles A. Bennett, 263 South Royal drive, of Oak Park, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. James Chessman, North Royal drive and Los Flores, Chicago, Ill.; G. W. Macomber, 111 East Colorado, Danes, Ill.; Dr. M. M. Null and Mrs. M. M. Null, 455 East Hill, of Danville and McCombe, Ill.

CARS COLLIDE AT EAGLE ROCK

E. F. Munyen of 133 South Hartwick and E. T. Towar of 1516 Linda Vista, Pasadena, were parties in the first collision to occur during a period of ten days in Eagle Rock. The accident occurred at 8 o'clock Friday evening when Towar, driving a Packard, clashed with Munyen's machine at Central and Colorado. Neither was injured. Towar's machine bears a dent in the left rear fender and a broken hubcap, and the Munyen car suffered a dented radiator and a sprung frame. Miss Florence Fisher of North Central witnessed the accident.

EAGLE ROCK IS INDIGNANT AT MAP NEGLECT

Dr. A. S. Johnson Finds City's Beauty Is Off Tourist Map

Dr. A. S. Johnson, who is interested in the development of Eagle Rock into one of the beauty spots of California, was indignant when he saw a scenic auto map of Southern California printed as a guide for motorists, to the most picturesque places accessible to machines, that had not included Eagle Rock.

Dr. Johnson said he didn't consider the map very complete, and that he believed the other real estate men of Eagle Rock would agree with him. The scenic advantages of Eagle Rock are especially noticeable along Hill drive.

There is an undeveloped section north of the boulevard toward the eastern city limits that is considered as the next choice site for homes. Dr. Johnson says people have told him that they can catch glimpses of the ocean from those hills, and that if such is the case, "La Vista del Mar" (View of the Sea) should be an appropriate name for the district.

DIGEST SHOWS HOW THEY VOTE

The Literary Digest published a table of votes in their last issue, in which they show the results gained when they placed ballots in the hands of 55,440 women voters, to show what their choice would be on the prohibition question and on the soldiers' bonus.

The question of prohibition was presented in three different manners for decision. First, for enforcement; second, for modification of the Volstead act, and third, for repeal. Out of the total number of votes cast, 22,716 voted for enforcement and 32,028 voted either for modification or repeal. This gave the percentage of wet voters among women as 60. The soldiers' bonus resulted in a total of 32,060 for it and 22,857 against it.

BABY CENSUS OF DISTRICT RESULTS FROM POPULARITY OF BEST BABY CONTEST

Indications That Every Parent Is Registering at Least One Child Becomes Plainer Every Day as Names of Little Ones Are Added to the Roll

HONOR OF BEING PREMIER BABY, REALIZED Prizes in the Great Sweepstake Take Second Place as Neighbors Vie With Each Other for Recognition of the "Bestness" of Their Offspring

Unless all signs fail, the Press best baby contest will be equivalent to a census of all the children of this district from 6 months to 6 years, for every day brings its big list of entries.

The prizes are an incentive, of course. It would be a great feather in the cap of any baby to win the $100 cash prize offered by the Press, or the merchandise order for an equal amount to be given by Pendroy's store. Failing these the beautiful ring with its sparkling diamond to be given by Arthur Dibbern, the jeweler; the handsome perambulator and the baby's crib offered by the Page Furniture company and the Trice Furniture company, would not come amiss and there will be others very much worth while. But after all, it isn't the reward so much as the credit of having a child worthy to be entered in the best baby contest, a child which they are willing to put up against all competitors, which influences parents. The many beautiful children who are brought to the Press office certainly justify parental pride.

The more numerous the entries the harder it will be for the judges but the more certainly will it prove that Glendale is a home city of par excellence, a baby town without a peer.

Among the recent entries is Frances Elizabeth Vaulet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Vaulet, of 1338 South San Fernando boulevard. She is sometimes called the

Glendale Attorney Well Qualified, Burbank Man Declares

Frank Weller, prominent Glendale attorney, whose candidacy for assemblyman from the Sixty-first district will be voted on at Tuesday's primaries, has been heartily endorsed by R. W. Colburn, secretary of the Burbank chamber of commerce.

"I have investigated the qualifications of Mr. Weller and I am convinced that he is entitled to the support of the voters in the district," declared Secretary Colburn.

Attorney Weller has met with fine success during his campaign for the state job and it is generally predicted that his success will terminate in his selection at the primaries and his subsequent election at the fall election.

"Thursday club baby" because her mother is one of the few members who is the mother of so young a child. Frances is 8 months old and has fair hair although both her parents have dark tresses. She is not timid, but is ready to smile and make friends with anyone who greets her cordially. She is exceedingly fond of animals.

Louise Walton, who is four years old, and who lives at 326 West El Bonita, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Walton, who recently came to Glendale from Salt Lake city. She is a very attractive child and before leaving the Mormon city exhibited juvenile modes in a big fashion revue held there. She is a very happy, busy little girl with something doing all the time. Such a good little dancer is she that her parents may have her trained for the stage. Her father conducts a jewelry store on South Brand.

Anna Marie Strother, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Strother, is a wonderful baby, 15 months old, whom her fond mother is inclined to consider the best of her six children, although the other five are unusual. One of them is Miss Lucy Strother, who was president of the student body last year in high school, and made a great record in that office.

Corinne Weinath, who lives at 502 West California, has the charming combination of fair hair and dark eyes. She was 2 years old in February, and has been talking for a year. She is a great little talker, too, and sings little pieces. Her mother thinks she will be an old-fashioned girl, as she is devoted to her dolls and very motherly.

PREDICTS BIG STEPHENS VOTE

Nomination Indicated Declares Campaign Mgr. of Governor

"Governor Stephens will be nominated by a decisive vote," said Senator William J. Carr, president of the Stephens for Governor club of Southern California.

"The source of opposition to him is now generally understood. It is centered in a few reactionary and selfish interests that would rule California with a high hand—interests like the Los Angeles Times (an ultra reactionary Los Angeles newspaper), the misnamed Better America federation, which has but recently launched a bitter attack on the direct primary and the initiative and referendum, and a few disgruntled public utilities, still resentful at having been forced by the King tax equalization bill to pay taxes for the support of the state government at the same rate that the ordinary taxpayer is forced to pay for the support of his city and county governments. To such a group as this, the people will never entrust their state government.

Forward looking and progressive men and women will prevail in the republican party in California, just as they have prevailed in primaries already held in eastern and middle western states like Pennsylvania, Indiana, Iowa and Nebraska. This is not the day of the reactionary or special privilege group.

"The 'get Stephens' crowd, by lavish use of money in the closing days of the campaign and by an extraordinary recklessness in the use of extravagant statements, have sought to disguise themselves and mislead the voters.

"Their chief disguise and reliance has been the so-called 'economy issue.' This issue, however, has lagged, as it has gotten out that their own representatives in the legislature have usually been at the forefront in raids on the state treasury. Their inability to point out where they would economize, the absurdity of criticizing the governor for expenditures voted by the people, and the realization of the significant fact that California has been the one white spot of prosperity on the map, and

PIKES PEAK IS LATEST DANCE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 28.—There's at least one place in the United States where the jazz dancers don't cavort in the new and "peppy" steps.

It isn't because there are any objections. But the dancers can't stand the strain.

Up on the summit of Pike's Peak the old-fashioned waltzes are the most popular among the dancers. When one exercises violently at an altitude of 14,108 feet the thin air soon puts an end to the activity. Mountain sickness results.

The Pike's Peak toddle is an invention of the "upper regions." It's a slow, graceful dance not calculated to shorten the breath unduly.

At that, however, sitting out is mighty popular, with the moon and stars 14,000 feet closer.

That splendid results for the people have been obtained under Governor Stephens' administration, have left this issue and disguise without vitality. There is too much of hypocrisy in talk of economy coming from this source to take well with the voters.

"The people are not easily fooled."

In view of his prominence in agricultural activities of this state, the attitude of C. C. Teague, president of the California Fruit Growers' exchange and Walnut Growers' association, and an important member of many other agricultural committees, becomes of more than passing interest regarding the reelection of Governor Stephens.

Asked by the press for a statement, Mr. Teague replies as follows:

"On numerous occasions, the agricultural legislative committee, of which I am president, has been before Governor Stephens on matters of interest to the agricultural interests of the state, and has always received every consideration from the governor that it was possible for him to give. We always found him giving careful consideration to all matters pertaining to expenditure of state funds and we were able to get his support on matters calling for the use of state money only after careful consideration on his part, and then only after he was fully convinced of the great need of the matter presented. After careful consideration, I have decided to give Governor Stephens my support in this campaign."

AUTO OVERTURNS, ONE OCCUPANT IS INJURED

Two Collisions Reported to Burbank Police Recently

Mrs. Bryon Howell of Brawley was injured when a Ford car in which she was riding overturned in a collision with another car on San Fernando boulevard, near the eastern city limits the latter part of last week. Her injuries are not serious.

The driver of the car that ran into the machine in which Mrs. Howell and four other persons were riding, failed to make a report of the accident and his name is not known.

Mrs. Howell and H. L. Gillespie, who had stopped his machine and was fixing his tire near the scene when the collision occurred, made reports of the mishap.

The four persons in the car that was overturned in addition to Mrs. Howell were Mrs. E. Harwood, Mrs. O. Pink, William Bowman and Mr. Bagby.

Another accident in Burbank was reported to the police, the report being made by Roy B. Wise, Los Angeles, driver of a Packard truck. The collision between his truck and an Overland operated by L. L. Courtney of Roscoe, occurred at San Fernando boulevard and Second street, according to Mr. Wise's report to the police.

LONDON.—Evelyn Margaret, 18, can claim the world's record for the number of "cops" chasing her along the same road. She started out clad in jersey and white silk short pants, seven minutes ahead of 255 London "cops" on a walking race from London to Southend, a 30 mile "trek."

OTTAWA, Ontario.—During the last fiscal year the Dominion government received from income tax returns approximately $30,000,000.

MONTREAL, Quebec.—A total of 50,581 tons of sugar has arrived in the port of Montreal since the harbor was opened in the spring.

JACK HOLT AT T. D. & L. TODAY

"The Man Unquerable," Opens Today at Local Playhouse

Jack Holt, virile Paramount star, has been seen in many unique roles during his screen career, but none has equalled in general interest his impersonation of Robert Kendall, a pearl fisher in the South Pacific islands, in his latest Paramount picture, "The Man Unquerable," which, according to Manager Ralph Allan of the T. D. & L. theatre, is one of the strongest photoplays he has booked thus far this season.

The scenes of the new picture, founded on a story of Hamilton Smith, are laid in the pearling grounds of the South Sea islands, where authorities conspire with thieves and the only law is the law of might. This condition provides ample opportunities for a story check full of tense situations, and two-fisted, red-blooded action.

Solely upon my fitness for the position, I respectfully present myself as a

Bonds to Be Offered on Market for Western Producers Relief

With the system of four Pacific Coast Joint Stock Land Banks, organized under charters granted May 29, completed, it is probable that an issue of the 5 percent bonds of the Pacific Coast Joint Stock Land Bank of San Francisco, Portland, Los Angeles and Salt Lake, will be shortly offered on the market, and the funds used for the benefit of the western producer in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah and Arizona.

The banks interested in the formation of the joint stock-land banks include the Mercantile Trust company of San Francisco, the First National bank of Los Angeles, the Security Trust & Savings bank of Los Angeles, the First National bank of Portland, Walker Bros. bankers of Salt Lake city, National Copper bank of Salt Lake, the Utah State National bank, and the Deseret National bank, of Salt Lake.

The four joint stock-land banks, one in San Francisco, one in Portland, one in Los Angeles, and one in Salt Lake, are united in the association of Pacific Coast land banks, which is composed of the principal officers of each of the banks, and is headed by W. H. Joyce as president. Mr. Joyce has been connected with the Federal farm loan system since its inception. He was first secretary and then president for three years of the Federal land bank at Berkeley. In April, 1920, Mr. Joyce was appointed a member of the Federal farm loan board at Washington, which supervises all operations of all the land banks in the United States. He resigned his position in June to take the presidency of the Pacific coast association. Mr. Joyce has secured national recognition as one of the most expert men in Federal land banking in the country.

The four Joint Stock-Land banks, in the association have been organized by financial institutions having aggregate resources of more than $500,000,000. The officers are conservative and highly successful bankers. To this nucleus of banking stability and experience, Mr. Joyce has recruited a force of appraisers and local officials especially skilled in land bank management and operation. The whole system is in the hands of experts. "Joint stock-land banks are farm mortgage loan institutions, chartered by and under strict supervision of the government," said Mr. Joyce yesterday. "Through them, loans are made to farmers at low rates of interest and with the most desirable method of repayment ever devised. These loans are made for a long period of years and so arranged that the interest and a small part of the principal is repaid every year, so that at the expiration of the term for which the loan is made the entire debt, both principal and interest, is entirely wiped out; but while such loans are of the greatest possible benefit to the farmer in supplying him with his required capital credit, every loan is made with due regard to the security. In other words, the only demand of a joint stock-land bank in supplying to the farmer this most desirable form of credit, is that the permanent and enduring character of the security will fully justify every loan made.

"When we make a loan we have to appraise the security, not on the basis of what it will be worth in three or five years, but what it will be worth in forty years. That is, every detail of the soil, the drainage, the water rights, the crops, the markets, must be investigated on a basis of absolute, permanent values. Every loan must bear the scrutiny of the National board at Washington before it can be used as the basis of the issue of bonds. After this careful appraisal, we may loan only up to 50 percent of the value of the land, plus up to 20 percent on the insurable value of the improvements. The purpose for which the loan is secured is also considered, the whole object being to make the security as certain as human foresight can provide.

"The Pacific Coast Joint Stock-Land banks will soon begin offering their bonds to the investors of this region, through the banking institutions which are behind the four banks and the association. These bonds are absolutely free from taxes of all kinds—municipal, state or federal, excepting only inheritance taxes—and bear an attractive rate of interest. They are secured by the deposit with the Farm loan registrar of United States government bonds of an equal value, or by farm loan mortgages.

"As loans are made and approved

Volunteer Force of Fire Fighters Save Much Property Damage

TUJUNGA, Aug. 28.—Fire, which for a time threatened to turn into a repetition of the conflagration which swept the Big Tujunga canyon four years ago, broke out yesterday morning in the great wood and sagebrush at the mouth of Haines' canyon, swept northwest, and was only checked at the top of the hill at the head of Pine street.

The origin of the fire remains a mystery, although many believe that it was started from combustion, with the heat from the sun shining through a piece of glass acting as the igniter.

Three houses in the direct path of the blaze were saved only through the hardest kind of work on the part of the two hundred men who responded to the fire call. The Heffleman home at the top of the hill was surrounded on three sides by the fire, but remained undamaged. The blaze swept so close to chicken houses belonging to D. H. Anderson of Fairview street that he was forced to let the poultry out. A fine example of the community cooperative spirit was shown in the large number of men who rushed to the fire with shovels and picks ready to work. It was only due to the labors of this volunteer force under the direction of Deputy Fire Warden Leo Lang that the blaze was brought under control as quickly as it was. Chemicals from the fire truck were used to very good advantage during the whole fight.

It is a misdemeanor with a heavy penalty attached to start a fire of any kind during the summer months without a permit issued by the deputy fire warden. The seriousness of yesterday's fire showed the wisdom of this law.

PADDOCK HEARS OF KIRKSEY

Is of the Belief He Would Make Good as a Boxer

PASADENA, Aug. 28.—Charley Paddock believes Morris Kirksey, his old competitor on the cinder path, can "knock 'em cold" in the prize ring.

Paddock recently received a report that Kirksey is going to try out his fistic prowess shortly, and Paddock is right there to give Morris the cheer, knowing that in an emergency he can leave anyone else in the country except one Charley Paddock behind.

Paddock believes Kirksey will be a big success, and is already considering matching him with Georges Carpentier. The difficulty, it is freely admitted, is that Carpentier seems to have an aversion to fighting anyone from America since his recent appearance against one J. H. Dempsey at Rickard arena, Boyle's Thirty Acres, New Jersey.

Paddock points out that Kirksey would qualify as a light heavyweight, and that he has the proper build and spirit to make a great pug. At least, Paddock is sure that Kirksey can clean up on any Belgian aspirants—he demonstrated that, and it was not until the Belgians pulled guns and bayonets at the Olympic stadium that Kirksey was hauled away to jail by the guards. Paddock bailed him out, still fighting mad.

Kirksey has been learning the game from Joe Murphy, Stanford lightweight prizefighter, and Paddock declares that Morris has picked up a powerful lot concerning what he can do with his fists. He already knows what to do with his feet.

However, as Kirksey has taken a position coaching football in a high school, it is doubtful that he can accommodate by giving Carpentier the K. O. But perhaps Paddock, who talked him out of lots of races, can talk him out of the high school, into the prize ring.

At Washington, these mortgages are substituted for the government bonds. Each loan is evidenced by a first mortgage and pledged with a registrar who is an official of the United States government. It will be seen, therefore, that in addition to the capital and credit of joint stock-land banks, every loan is secured by improved farming property of unquestioned value. It is difficult to conceive of anything safer.

"From a sentimental standpoint, which we find many bond buyers consider along with the absolute security, nothing could be more attractive than such an issue as these. The money is used to finance agricultural operations. It gives to the successful farmer, with good land, the ability to command necessary capital which he can pay back in installments as easy as he hardly feels them.

"In the purchase of these bonds, therefore, the investor not only owns a tax exempt security of the very highest type, but aids in promoting the prosperity of his own country, a prosperity in which he must inevitably participate as the years go on."

OH, MAN!
Come out to the mountains with us this summer, old man, and have the time of your life. Lot's of fishing, trap-shooting, everything. Excuse me, Bill, but did you say "trap-shooting" or "crap-shooting"? It makes no difference, we'll do both.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

Suppose this busy world of ours should be turned right about. With the Outs all in the harness and the Ins of life all out; If Jones who kicks on prices ran the little country store, Would the prices he complains of be much lower than before? Would it help the world of letters if the critic wrote the book, And the author now who does it on the instant got the hook? If the borrower were banker, would it change his point of view, And would he charge us interest, the same as bankers do?

If the kickers were in congress and the congressmen were out, Would the things the kickers kick about at once be put to rout? If the fellows on soap-boxes ran the country as they planned, Would the soap-box fleet be dry-docked or by other kickers manned? If the toiler signed the pay-checks and the owner worked for wage, Would it settle the wage troubles that have fretted every age? Would the Boss and the employe not have any bridge to cross If the Boss were just a worker and the worker were the Boss?

If the Tenant were the Landlord and the Landlord paid him rent, Would the rent he pays be lowered by the other's quick consent? If the Runner were the Umpire would the two at once agree When the Umpire called the Runner out; if so the case might be? It may be but I doubt it; if the Ins were straightway out, And the Outs were straightway in and everything turned round about, We'd hear the voice of kickers all about us just the same— It all depends on whether you may win or lose the game.

Babson's Letter

RAILROAD AND COAL STRIKES WILL ULTIMATELY BE AVOIDED

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Aug. 26.—People are not so much interested in the temporary settlement of the coal strike and the railroad strike as in developing plans so that they will not periodically recur. It is not enough to know that we shall have coal this winter or that railway traffic is not now suspended. If the people of this country are to be healthy, happy and prosperous, we must know that some plan is being evolved to prevent these strikes from recurring. In view of these facts, Roger W. Babson was this week asked to make a forecast as to future labor developments. His diagnosis of the strike situation follows:

"When in Washington during the war, assisting the secretary of labor, it was evident that the students of labor problems were divided into two distinct groups; one group believes in compulsory arbitration as illustrated by the Kansas industrial court, and the other group stands purely for conciliation without any compulsion. Conservatives and radicals can be found in both groups. Investigation leads me to believe that there is a field for both of these lines of work. Labor disputes in connection with general industries, such as the textile industry, the boot and shoe industry, and possibly the steel industry, should be kept on a conciliation basis. It surely would be a mistake to attempt compulsory arbitration in connection with these businesses which are operated solely for profit. The best means of avoiding trouble in these industries is by keeping these industries in two major labor groups, one group to be strictly "union" and the other group strictly "non-union." Let the union group adopt the closed shop and let the other group be strictly non-union. Then let the two groups compete. I do not mean necessarily in production, but rather see under which system the public, the employes and the stockholders, all combined, are most prosperous. My own guess is that none of these three parties would long be healthy, happy and prosperous with all "union" or with all "non-union." When one group secures control, it becomes inefficient, careless and arrogant. My guess is that an industry would be most prosperous and all concerned in it would be the happiest if the industries were equally divided into a union and a non-union field. So much for general industry. When disputes arise, only conciliation should be applied by a third party. There should be no compulsory settlements in such cases.

"When, however, we come to transportation, fuel, public utilities such as water, light and gas, or to the distribution of milk, bread, etc., we find a group of industries to which compulsory arbitration must be applied. The first two groups to which such strong-arm methods will be applied are the railroads and coal mines. First let me say that the railroads and the mine operators are themselves largely to blame for present trouble. Although the owners of these properties are now behaving themselves, they have not always done so. Most of the unwise methods that labor leaders are using today were applied by the railroads and mine operators of twenty years ago. Hence these corporations now are only reaping what they have sown. Nevertheless, two wrongs do not make a right. Our nation must have transportation and fuel at a fair rate and the operation of its railroad and coal properties must be undisturbed by either la-

LEARNS ABOUT THE LAW FROM JUDGE CRUZAN

E. G. Van Horn Had No License; Never Heard of It

One of the first cases to be tried in Judge Cruzan's police court this morning was that of E. G. Van Horn, who was charged with violating the state motor vehicle act by driving over Colorado street bridge at a rate of 29 miles an hour. He was also charged with having no operator's license. Van Horn pleaded guilty to both charges, but told the judge that he had been driving a car for over 13 years and this was the first time he had ever heard of an operator's license.

ments and the employes that the railroad board was not properly made up. Concerning this, Mr. Babson stated:

"Experience has shown that boards consisting of three groups (one group representing capital, one group representing labor, and one group representing the public) do not function well. The group representing capital vote in one body for the corporations; the group representing labor vote in one body for the wage workers; this leaves the decision on the three men who represent the public. The problems involved are too great to permit leaving the decision to three men, chosen more or less for political reasons. To have the railroad labor board or any other such board properly function, five, seven or nine men should be selected who represent neither the corporation nor the wage workers, but who represent the nation. These men should be paid large salaries, given dignified positions, appointed either for life or for long terms, and treated like the supreme court of the United States. These men should gradually build up a code based upon their rulings, seeking the advantage of no one group, but rather the welfare of the nation as a whole, which in the end would be for the best interests of both the owners and the wage workers. The decisions of this board as applying to transportation, public utilities and similar conflicts, should be absolute and final.

A Strong Endorsement of Judge J. W. Summerfield for Re-election

J. W. SUMMERFIELD
Was born at Vernon, Ind., Nov., 1869, and came to California in 1883. He was educated in the public schools of this state and graduated from the U. S. C. Law School in 1901. He was in the District Attorney's office from 1899 to 1901, and in 1901 opened law offices in the Copp Building. From 1907 to 1920 he was justice of the peace in Los Angeles township, and in 1920 when he came up for election to the short term as Superior Judge received a majority of 50,000. He is a candidate for election this year for the long term as Superior Judge.

Judge Summerfield is a Mason and an Elk, and is also a member of the Eagles, Woodmen, Moose, Knights of Pythias and Eastern Star, Tent D. O. R. (honorary member) Amarauth.

Judge Summerfield is married and has two daughters. He has been a resident of Los Angeles county for forty years.

We, the undersigned citizens and voters of Glendale, heartily indorse the candidacy of Judge J. W. Summerfield for re-election to the office of Judge of the Superior Court of this county.

We believe that Judge Summerfield has the requisite qualities, both of mind and of heart to successfully fulfill the obligations and discharge the duties of this office. He has the indorsement of the Long Beach, the Los Angeles County Bar Association and Pasadena Bar Association, and in our opinion his record as a public servant in this county during the past sixteen years merits his re-election. It is with pleasure that we unreservedly recommend him to your consideration. Vote for him at the primary election, August 29th.

Don't Fail to Vote for Judge Summerfield at the Primary Election, Tuesday, August 29, 1922.
